BRYAN ENJOYS HONOLULU LIFE

Democratic Leader Is Entertained for a Day.

Delivers Brief Speech at Royal Hawaiian Hotel.

Democracy in Hawaii, and especially in Honolulu, had its one great in-ning yesterday in the chance to greet William Jennings Bryan, twice the standard bearer of the Democratic party in the presidential campaigns of 1896 and 1900. Mr. Bryan was the guest, not only of the local Democrats, but of Honolulu as well, and the people of the city endeavored in many ways to show that he was a welcome one. From early in the morning until late in the afternoon, the Democratic chieftain was given every opportunity to see what Honolulu looked like and to hear what some of its citizens had to say on local conditions. Mr. Bryan, in turn, showed that he was observant, for he made suggestions as to the up-building of the Territory, especially in the matter of immigration. He recommended north Italian immigration, and strangely enough, while he was expressing his thoughts to Governor Carter in one room of the capitol, the Immigration Board, in an adjoining room, was passing a resolution just in line with them.

The plans of the committee worked smoothly, and in the entertainment afforded by Mr. and Mrs. Bryan, the true hospitality of Hawaii was shown.

BRYAN PARTY LANDS.

The Customs launch Waterwitch left the Oceanic dock at 6:35 and reached the Manchuria in quick time. Aboard the launch were Messrs. E. B. McClanahan, W. A. Kinney, Col. Iaukea, Col. Parker, R. H. Trent and Senator Palmer Wood, representing the Democratic Central Committee; Messrs. Musgrave, Harry Murray and others representing the Elks, and members of the press. The railings were lined with passengers, but for a time Mr. Bryan was not visible. He came up on deck with Captain Saunders, of the Manchuria, who pointed out several of those on the launch and mutual recognitions were expressed by head-noddings. Mr. R. C. A. Peterson later pointed out the personnel of the entire committee more particularly and Mr. Bryan was then able to call out to Col. Parker and Mr. McClanahan.

Mr. Bryan looked much as he did during his first campaign. There was the same strong face with its firm, straight-tipped mouth, curly hair, long black Alpaca coat and black string necktie, which made him instantly recognizable by the crowd.

As soon as the cabin passengers were examined by the local quarantine officer, Mr. Bryan and party were permitted to leave the ship. Mr. Bryan was accompanied by Mrs. Bryan, Miss Grace Bryan and William Jennings Bryan, Jr. They were assisted to the Waterwitch and the launch came into the harbor and landed the party at the Oceanic dock. The wharves were lined with people and photographers were kept busy for several minutes.

On the way in to the dock Mr. Bryan conversed with the different members of the committee. Senator Palmer Wood was introduced as the "Lone Democrat of the Legislature."

"You were the only Democrat?" inquired Bryan.
"Yes, in the Senate," answered the Senator.
"And how many were there in the House?"

The reply to this question was a ripple of laughter, at which Mr. Bryan looked puzzled. It was explained to him that Palmer Wood was the only Democrat in the entire Legislature.

"Then you had no difficulty in caucusing," said Mr. Bryan.
"No, the Democratic member was always unanimous."

HAWAII APPROVED BY BRYAN

Mr. Bryan's speech, delivered from the steps of the Royal Hawaiian Hotel at noon yesterday.

"Ladies and Gentlemen: I think I ought to correct the gentleman (Mr. McClanahan) when he says that I have kindly consented to speak. The truth is that I have, more properly speaking, been kindly permitted by the people of Honolulu to talk to them. (Laughter). Over in the United States it is known that I have frequently yielded to the temptation to speak. In fact, it gave a certain Republican friend of mine in my home-city an opportunity to play a joke on me. In the campaign of 1896, I went around the country in a special train (and I may say that the party to which I belong always pays for its special trains), and sometimes it was necessary to collect from the Democrats of the cities which we visited. This gave rise to the rumor, persistently repeated, that I was being paid for making speeches and that I would refuse to speak unless I was paid $100. The idea was absurd, but many believed it. In one place we visited, a Democratic friend of mine asked a Republican if he thought the story could be true. 'Don't you believe it,' said this Republican. 'I know Bryan too well for that. So far from wanting to get $100 for speaking he would pay $100 for the chance to speak at any time.' So you see I really feel that you have let me off easily."

"I am very glad to be here. In laying out the trip to Japan we arranged to pass through Honolulu and I feel richly repaid for the fact that we have gone a little out of our way in order to reach these beautiful islands."

"On behalf of Mrs. Bryan I want to thank the good people of this country for the trouble they have taken to make us enjoy this day. This has been a delightful experience and I am very glad to have been permitted to meet the native population as well as the American population. We are glad to make the acquaintance of these new American citizens, and nothing has gratified me more, from what I have heard since my arrival, to learn that there is harmony and goodwill between these original inhabitants of the soil or those who lived here before the white man set foot on these shores, and those who have come from America. It is as it should be. The only rivalry between the two peoples, as I understand it, is one to see which can contribute the most to the upbuilding of the land."

"It is not appropriate for me to make a political speech now, but I am coming back here again, and unless you get out an injunction, I am going to make one. (Laughter)."

"When we come right down to fundamental principles, we Democrats and Republicans are not so different after all. It is only on the application of these fundamental principles to the problems that are raised from time to time that we find differences. I had this impressed upon my mind some years ago in preparing a Democratic platform in which I inserted, or quoted, a paragraph from the Declaration of Independence. I was severely criticized by the Republicans for this, but I found on investigation that not only had Abraham Lincoln's platform contained this same paragraph, but I also found that two Democratic platforms had quoted the same extract, and that three times in the history of the country, at intervals of twenty years, political parties had seen fit to inculcate this same fundamental principle in their platforms."

"In great crises people seek a sure foundation and only in fundamental truths can such a foundation be found. We are merely human and far from perfect, and in all probability you will have numerous troubles, politically. I mean, in the future, but you will find that by dying and applying the fundamental truths you will find a solution of these difficulties."

"I am one of those who detest war and do not believe in one people killing another to settle political differences. (Applause). Peace presents the grandest opportunities for fame, and the opportunity for you and for me is to prove our love of our country and of

EARNEST GAMBLING CRUSADE

Honolulu, September 27, 1905.
A. M. Brown, Esq., Sheriff County of Oahu, Honolulu.

Dear Sir: We are reliably informed that gambling is being carried on in Honolulu, both by Chinese and by white men. The publicity with which gambling places are being conducted is such as to indicate either protection, indifference or incompetency on the part of the police. At best the money being spent upon the police, especially the detective force, is not securing results which we are entitled to expect. We address you thus preliminarily, hoping and believing that the protection

BRYAN'S IMPRESSIONS OF HONOLULU.

"It has been a most pleasurable day to us, in many ways. What pleased me most, without any qualification, was the schools (Kamehameha Schools) which I visited this morning, and the knowledge that perfect harmony exists between the native Hawaiian and the population which has come into the country from abroad. It seems to me this is as it should be. The Hawaiian Islands should have a growing population, for they should be a winter resort for the people of the northern and eastern states. I can not imagine a more delightful trip than that to Honolulu."

"The people here have certainly done everything they could to make our day a pleasant and memorable one, and I appreciate the courtesy shown by the Democratic committee and the Elks. I have been a member of the Elks for five years and have often had the opportunity of knowing their generous hospitality."

"As to the question of immigration, I may say it is a very important one. I was glad today, while visiting Governor Carter and Secretary Atkinson, to see that it was receiving attention. I have no doubt but that as the result of these investigations you will later reach a conclusion that will best tend to the proper development of this country."

"AS TO HAWAII, I HAVE ALWAYS THOUGHT THESE ISLANDS ENTIRELY DIFFERENT FROM THE PHILIPPINES. In the first place, the Hawaiian Islands are so close to us, as to be almost part of the United States, and in the second place, the islands are so small that their problems are easily dealt with."

"WE HAVE JUSTLY ADMITTED THE HAWAIIAN POPULATION TO CITIZENSHIP."—Wm. J. Bryan on board the Customs launch Waterwitch, en route to the Manchuria just before sailing for Japan yesterday evening.
